- The movie, The General (1927) is part of the collection: Silent Films <http://www.archive.org/details/TheGeneral>
Director: Buster Keaton, Clyde Bruckman
Summary: Union soldiers have stolen The General, a Confederate train manned by Johnnie Gray, who was unable to enlist in the Confederate army because he is needed as an engineer. The Union plans to use the train to supply its soldiers in a sneak attack against the Confederates. But now it's up to Gray and his love, Annabelle Lee, to reclaim The General, recross enemy lines, and warn the Confederates. The General is based on a real incident during the American Civil War when a posse of northern soldiers hijacked a confederate train and a lone southern engineer found himself fighting the lot of them alone. This comedy is considered to be one of the great masterpieces of silent cinema.
